Debate Squad
Closes Season
Here April 8

Men's Team Meets North Central College In Last Debate

The men's debating season at Lawrence will end for this year when Coneb Franzke's affirmative team meets the negative squad from North Central College at Naperville, Illinois, here on Friday, April 8. That same evening the Lawrence negative team will journey to Naperville, where they will meet the affirmative men from the Illinois college.

North Central College had one of the strongest debating teams in the Midwest last year, and, with most of her veteran speakers back, is again represented with two especially capable teams. The Naperville debaters have just finished a session of successful no-decision debating before high schools of their state, besides having engaged in several decision debates on the McNary-Haugen Bill. The clash with the Lawrence team should find them at their best.

This is the only chance Lawrence students will have this year of hearing a men's debate, as it is the last forensic clash of the season, and the first one to be held here. During the course of the season Lawrence has met Carroll, Ripon, Beloit, Cornell, St. Olaf's, and Occidental colleges in no-decision contests. It is not yet known who will be the speakers to represent Lawrence in these two debates.

Offers "Telescope Course" In Spring Romance Setting

Spring evenings—air like a caress—silver river lapping the dusk—a pale moon—and a telescope—This romantic atmosphere, with faculty sanction, beginning April 7 until commencement, will be accessible to Lawrence students on Thursday night from 8:00 to 9:00 at the observatory.

Professor John C. Lymer will be there to point out and explain about the moon, the planets and the double stars. The nights of April 7 and May 12 will be the two nights when the moon can be seen with the greatest clarity, while Saturn and Venus will be seen to the best advantage during the latter part of May.

Public Service Course Offered To Graduates

Graduate courses in public training for prospective public service employees will be offered at the University of Cincinnati, for the school year 1927-8, including fifteen months of training work, according to an announcement received at the college library today. Members of the Lawrence college graduating class of 1927 who may be interested are urged to send in their applications immediately, as only a limited number of applicants may be accepted.

The courses, which will be conducted under the department of political science, with S. Gale Lowrie in charge, will give experience in actual public service. It is expected that the compensation offered will pay as much as an ordinary fellowship, and a master's degree may be achieved by the six months of work. The government of the city of Cincinnati has developed in an interesting way under the manager form, and the experience thus offered is certain to be of value.

Persons interested must have their applications in before April 1. Further information may be secured from Miss Anna Tarr, librarian.

Don Hood, ex-'29, Baraboo, spent the week-end with Delta Sigma Tau brothers.

Schumann-Heink To Appear April 8; On Golden Jubilee Tour

Famous Singer To Make Last Appearance In Fiftieth Concert Season

Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, who has endeared herself to all music lovers, will appear in Appleton at Memorial chapel on April 8. This season of concert work is her golden jubilee tour, and is to be her last one.

"Few have reigned so long and with such complete sway" as has Madame Schumann-Heink. In her fiftieth year as a concert singer she is still among that small group of stars who attract capacity audiences. In addition to perfect technique, her singing has a warmth and an emotion which appeals to her listeners.

Madame Schumann-Heink is being brought to Appleton under the auspices of the Appleton Women's club. She appeared in Appleton several times, her last appearance being in October when she sang at high mass at St. Mary's church.

Announce Deadline For Contest Contributions

Contributions to the Hick's short story and poetry contest and the Reid essay contest must be in by April 16, according to Professor F. W. Clippinger of the English department.

Three prizes are offered, one for the best short story, one for the best poem, and one for the best essay. Contributions will be rated by three judges.

Conditions of the contest are three typewritten copies of each contribution, the use of a pen name, and the enclosure of the real name in a sealed envelope on the outside of which the assumed name is written.

The winners of last year's contests were Dan Hardt, '26, the essay, Herbert Webster, '27, the poetry, and James Ford, '28, the short story contest.

Drama Class Presents "Suppressed Desires"

"Suppressed Desires", a one-act play by Susan Glaspell, was presented at convocation on Friday by three members of the dramatic art class. The cast was: Stephen Brewster, an architect, John Robson, '28; Henrietta, his wife, Ione Kriess, '28; Mabel, Henrietta's sister, Viola Foster, '27. The play was coached by Ione Kriess.

The scene was laid in the New York studio of the Brewster family, and the conflict centered around Henrietta's almost fanatical belief in the psychoanalysis of suppressed desires, and the method her husband used to shatter her faith in the science.

Wriston Talks On Standing Of Lawrence

President Speaks Of Students' Opportunities To Find Ideal Freshman Class

The high standing of Lawrence among the midwest colleges was the subject of a talk at convocation yesterday by President Henry M. Wriston. "The tone of the student body is largely the product of the students themselves," he said.

He commented upon the sound public sentiment which now exists within the college on many issues, and bespoke the assistance of the students in finding a freshman class of equally high standard. He emphasized that the students were in a peculiarly good position, because of the unusually even distribution of its undergraduates over the state, to reach prospective students in the various towns of the state. Undergraduates, moreover, have the advantages of knowing the high school graduates in their several towns, and of being thus able to interest them directly.

Speaking of the advantages of Lawrence, he emphasized the unusually fine standing of the faculty, the training and experience of its members, and the recognition which they have gained in such publications as Who's Who. He commented upon the fact that very few colleges have not only the approval of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, of the Association of American Universities, and of the American Association of University Women, but a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa as well.

He also spoke of the library as one of the great assets of the college, and told how it is growing at a more rapid rate than that of any other college in the state. The value of the conservative than that of any other college in bringing them musical training and opportunities for hearing fine music was another point which he brought out.

Well Known Wisconsin Poet Formerly Lawrence Student

"Darling, we are growing old, Silver threads among the gold—"

All students know this song, but not so many people on the campus know that Eben E. Rexford, author of this and other famous sentimental songs, was a Lawrence student.

Mr. Rexford came to Lawrence from his home in Shiocton in 1872 to get his "higher up" education. He remained here only a year, but in 1908, in recognition of his literary achievements, was given the honorary degree of Litt. D.

Struggling composition students must have envied him. Verses and stories flowed easily from the pen of this literary lion. Though but twenty-four years old, he had acquired fame throughout the country. "Silver Threads Among the Gold", written when he was eighteen, was sold to Frank Leslie's "Chimney Corner" for three dollars! It swept the nation when it was set to music several years later.

He had a good imagination and sense of humor, for he used to chuckle over his writing verses to "My Loving Little Wife" when he was fourteen.

Mr. Rexford was a prolific writer even when in college. His interest, "though he didn't care a tap about love", was in writing short love stories for the New York Ledger. He was enriched about five dollars for each one of these. He could not remember when he had begun to compose, and though he had never seen the inside of a grammar, knew correct sentences because of their right sound.

Students Would Revise Order Of Commandments

Revision of the ten commandments was discussed by members of the Fireside Fellowship group of the Methodist church, according to individual sentiment voiced by the members at a meeting held Sunday, March 20. The discussion dealt purely with individual feeling. Group sentiment will be discussed at a later meeting.

The majority of the students present were in favor of combining the first two commandments, "Thou shalt have no other Gods before me" and "Thou shalt not make unto thyself a graven image." They would place this combined commandment first in the revised code.

The second commandment in the revised code would be the one that appears fifth in the decalogue, according to most of the individuals. The commandment as stated in the Bible is "Honor thy father and mother, that thy days in the land of thy Lord may be long." Following this the majority would place Moses' tenth statement "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house, nor his wife, nor his man servant, nor his maid servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor anything that is thy neighbor's."

Sentiment concerning the fourth place of importance was divided equally between six and seven in the Bible. "Thou shalt not kill", and "Thou shalt not commit adultery", respectively.

Fifth place was quite generally given to "Thou shalt not steal," which appears eighth in the decalogue. Most of the students ranked "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor" sixth, although it is ninth in the Mosaic code.

Seventh and eighth places were given to "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy" and "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord in vain", which are the fourth and third respectively in the decalogue.

One student would have only the first commandment exist for the reason that if one obeyed this one commandment all others would naturally be obeyed. Another student would rate the one God commandment last.

Organize Staff To Direct Production Of College Play

Helen Chegwin, '29, Selected Assistant Director Of "You Never Can Tell"

Helen Chegwin, '29, Fond du Lac, has been chosen as assistant director to aid Miss Lucile Welty in coaching "You Never Can Tell," the all-college play.

Other technical staff positions are distributed as follows: stage manager, Victor Quam, '28; assistant stage manager, Norman Greenwood, '27; property chairman, Dorothy Verrier, '27; assistants, Tom Yates, '28; Anita Koehler, '30, Beatrice Olin, '27; wardrobe chairman, Madge Helmar, '28; Eunice Davis, '27, and Myrtle Ellis, '27, as assistants; scene design, Bruce MacInnis, '28.

The business staff consists of Ray Richards, '28, general business manager; Bruce MacInnis, '28, advertising manager, with Arthur Malmberg, '29, as assistant; John Robson, '28, publicity manager; and Herbert Ungrodt, '29, manager of the ticket campaign.

Miss Welty, director of the production, announces that active rehearsals will begin directly after the spring holidays.

Glee Club To Give Program From WHAD

Radio fans will have the opportunity on the evening of April 3, of hearing an hour's concert broadcast by the Lawrence college glee club, under direction of Dean Waterman, from a Milwaukee station. Arrangements for the program have been completed by Dan Hardt, '26, and the Lawrence singers will be put on the air from Station WHAD, Milwaukee Journal, between 8 and 9 o'clock on Sunday, evening, April 3.

An hour's program, which will take in the entire club, will be arranged for the radio concert, and it is hoped that Dr. Wriston may be able to give a short address.

Juvenile Pupils In Conservatory Recital

A group of juvenile pupils of Mildred Boettcher, piano instructor at the conservatory, presented a recital at Peabody hall last night. All the numbers played were from "Alice in Wonderland" by Lynes, the titles representing scenes from that familiar fairy tale. Readings were given by Polly Smiley.

Harry Seidmore, '26, Janesville, visited at the Sigma Phi Epsilon house over the week-end.

Senate Seeks Charter With Student Group

Applies For Membership In National Student Federation Of America

The Student Senate, of Lawrence college has decided to affiliate with the National Student Federation of America and is now applying for a charter. The suggestion for this move came from Miss Ellen Tutton, '25, personnel secretary of the college, who attended the national convention of the Federation held last year, December 2, 3, and 4 at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

The National Student Federation is an association of over three hundred leading colleges and universities of the United States, banded together to "achieve a spirit of cooperation among the students of the United States, to give consideration to questions affecting students' interests, to develop an intelligent student opinion on questions of national and international importance, and to foster understanding among students of the world in furtherance of an enduring world peace."

Accomplishments of the Federation during the past are intercollegiate surveys on compulsory chapel, prohibition, teachers' salaries, eligibility rules, and fraternity regulations; cooperation with the American advisory committee for student tours in Europe; association with the Confederation Internationale des Etudiants for the exchange of hospitality and information between American and foreign students; and the establishment of the Princeton clipping bureau and an intercollegiate news service.

Projects of the Federation for the coming year are the publication of pamphlets dealing with matters of student interests, organization of more extensive and intensive student tours, the reception of foreign students in the United States, and the establishment of exchange scholarships with foreign students.

The next convention of the Federation will be during the school year 1927-28 at the University of Nebraska, at Lincoln.

Three Mice Lead Turbulent Lives In Science Lab

The poverty stricken church mouse of fable has nothing on the three unfortunate rodents of Science hall. People who live in glass houses, et cetera, but the grey mice in the glass bell jar in the chemistry department have every right to throw fits.

Cheese, oxygen, cookies, pet names, and maledictions, are their daily fare. Too much oxygen caused them a moment of extreme intoxication, and when Dr. Florence Stouder was feeding them, Saturday, one of the triumvirate leaped out of the bell jar, darted past the pant leg of a watching scientist, and so into eternal oblivion. A dose of ether immediately quieted the high spirits of the other two.

Judging from the size of the mice, pickings about Science are scant and meager. The chemistry department plans to feed the stunted duo on lettuce in an attempt to fill out their concavities with vitamins. In the meantime, admiring chemists at the hall are giving them calories in the shape of cookies and cheese, and the two mice promise well to snort at fashion and develop some voluptuous curves.

HOW WE RATE

At last we've got the real dope on this college of ours. We always knew Lawrence offered the best springtime north of Honolulu, and that it inaugurated the youngest college president in the United States, but we didn't know that it is one of the five colleges in the midwest, and one of the two in Wisconsin, to have the approval of the American Association of University Women, the North Central Association and the Association of American Universities, that it is one of the forty-five colleges in the United States which has a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, and that eight of its faculty members are listed in "Who's Who".

We might add a few things which Dr. Wriston left out of his survey yesterday morning. Did you know that Lawrence has 1100 students from 14 states of the union, and two from foreign countries; that its 17 buildings and 14 acre campus are valued at $1,270,000; that its Carnegie library contains 45,000 books; that its certificates and credits are accepted at full value in all graduate schools; that it is a member of the Mid-west and Wisconsin-Illinois College athletic conferences; and a member of the Mid-West Colleges Forensic Conference; that its Conservatory of Music and Men's Glee Club are nationally known?

With all these arguments at hand, we really should be able to make high school students realize that Lawrence is THE college of the Midwest. When you go home for vacation, radiate your pride in Lawrence, and help guide the destiny of two or three of the young proteges of your town by guiding them Lawrence-ward!

MAKES ANNUAL DEBUT

Again the question of compulsory chapel comes up, and, as always, it will burn for a while, and then be relegated for another season. As someone on the campus has said, "opposition to compulsory convocation is largely traditional—it is one of a number of purely hereditary itches".

When we stop to think it over we realize that we get a big part of our higher education from our daily convocation periods—get it, most of the time, in a highly palatable form. And we are all aware that, no matter how much we appreciate the value of the chapel programs, the urge to breakfast at Snider's regularly between the hours of ten and ten-thirty would be too strong for most of us, and we would consequently lose much that adds breadth to our college education.

Casey, the famous, brought A mighty stomach down To battle at the Roman bar For the all-Italian crown.

Now Casey was a pitcher, A heaver of renown. To watch him put those beers away Was to make the judges frown.

The bartenders—they worked in squads. The audience, in tears, Jealously watched the big parade Of beers and beers and beers.

Still Casey's foot was on the rail, His elbow on the bar. "Unanimous" the judges said, "Casey is the star."

Alas, success went to his head. Too many drinks, no doubt. For Casey lost his championship— Casey struck out!

TAKING WAYS

A cub reporter, frequently reprimanded for his long articles and warned to be brief, turned in the following:

"A shocking affair occurred last night. Sir Edward Hopeless, a guest at Lady Pannmore's ball, complained of feeling ill, took a highball, his hat, his overcoat, his departure, no notice of his friends, a taxi, a pistol from his pocket, and finally, his life. Nice chap. Regrets and all that." Exchange.

Unwept, But Not Unsung

Back in the days of our youth, there was an organization known as the N.R.C. club—for those whose names were read in chapel. Eventually, the organization lost its exclusive character, and disbanded.

Now several of the old members have joined a new club—the N.S.R. Club. Have your name sung at Rain-bow!

If we knew one more funny story, we could close this column. Let's see, how about the one about—no, that won't do at all. And our contribution box contains nothing but blank scraps of paper. Ah, we have it! Next year, all the co-eds are going to take algebra—because of its x-appeal.

That's all!

Lawrence Alumnus Given Professorship In Eastern School

Howard Thompson Lewis, '10, Appointed to Chair in Harvard School Of Business Administration

Howard Thompson Lewis, '10, has accepted a full professorship in the Harvard School of Business Administration at Harvard University. Professor Lewis, who has been Dean of the College of Business Administration at the University of Washington, at Spokane, has been on a one year's leave of absence in Italy during the past year. He was the recipient of the Westinghouse Exchange professorship, which enabled him to spend the year in Italy.

Professor Lewis graduated from Lawrence in 1910. Since that time, he has been professor of economics and sociology at the State Normal School of Kansas, professor of economics at Hiram college, associate professor of political science at the University of Idaho, and then dean of the College of Business Administration at the University of Washington.

Well-known because of his numerous contributions to professional magazines of economics and sociology. Professor Lewis is a member of the American Sociological society, the American Economics association, and the American Political Science association. He is also a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Tau Kappa Alpha, and Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Mat Squad Loses To Green Bay Team

Winning four out of six matches, the Green Bay Y.M.C.A. wrestling team defeated the Lawrence grapplers Friday evening at Alexander Gymnasium before an audience of two hundred people. The Green Bay men showed the results of greater experience and training.

Kneip, substituting for Setter, was thrown by Lawrence of Green Bay in the 135 lb. class in four minutes and fifty seconds. Kneip weighed in at 121 lbs. while Lawrence weighed 133 lbs. Purvis of Lawrence had very little trouble in the 145 lb. class by tossing Millis in two minutes and five seconds, with a body scissors hold.

Hezelbur of Green Bay pinned Dreher's shoulders to the mat in six minutes and fifty-six seconds in the 158 lb. division. Barfell, also wrestling in the same weight threw his man in 10 minutes after a hard fight. Nobles, wrestling in the 175 pound class, was thrown by Gillespie of Green Bay in four minutes and fifty seconds. Although Nobles was out-weighted by fifteen pounds he stuck to his man for some time.

In the heavyweight bout, Krohn of Lawrence lost to DeBaker in four minutes and two seconds. Krohn was forced to give up because DeBaker had a terrific body scissors hold on him.

Esther Ziegler Chosen Head of Numeral Club

Esther Ziegler, '28, was elected president of the Numeral club at its meeting Friday night at Sage. Lois Manchester, '27, was chosen vice-president, and Mary Ellen Bond, '28, secretary-treasurer. The constitution was adopted and plans for initiation discussed.

Membership in the club is open to all who have been awarded W.A.A. class numerals, but written applications must be sent to the secretary at least one week before initiation. The date of the first initiation will be announced soon.

Dr. Bagg Will Lecture To Wisconsin Academy

Dr. Rufus M. Bagg, of the department of Geology and Mineralogy, will give an illustrated lecture before the Wisconsin Academy of Sciences, Arts, and Letters on April 8 at the annual meeting of the society at Madison. His subject will be: "The Life and Customs of the Tarahumara Indians of the Sierra Madre Mountains of Northern Mexico."

Dr. Bagg became acquainted with these Indians while manager of the Monteroe Gold Mine, Chihuahua, Mexico, during the years 1904-1906, and employed many of them on the trails over the mountain. The lantern slides are views which Dr. Bagg took while riding these rugged ranges in search of gold and silver mines.

An added interest in this lecture is that on March 25 two of these Indians are to run the Marathon foot race at Austin, Texas. One of these Tarahumara ran fifty miles in one day for Dr. Bagg while he was mining in the Sierras.

Albert Petersen Gets Teaching Fellowship

Albert Petersen, '27, has received notice of his appointment to a teaching fellowship in zoology at the University of California at Berkeley. He received similar offers from four universities in Midwestern states, but on account of the location he has accepted California.

He will become a candidate for the Ph.D. degree.

OPINIONS

What do you think of compulsory convocation attendance?

Fred W. Trezise, Professor of Engineering: Convocation gives opportunity for strengthening the liberal in liberal arts. It broadens the sympathy and understanding for the work and problems of the various departments of a liberal arts course and fosters an appreciation for the best in music and art. Students are brought together as a group, and announcements can be better conveyed and understood. This in itself is a strong factor in unifying the student body. Some one has said that compulsory attendance furnishes an audience for anyone who has something to say.

Forrest W. Muck, '27: Undoubtedly compulsory convocation attendance is necessary if we wish convocation to continue. I believe, however, that a large number of skips should be allowed.

Bob Hipke, '27: I feel that the present method of bringing students to convocation is a satisfactory one. I have felt, especially this year, that our half-hour in convocation is a well-spent one, and that the only way to have students appreciate it is by obligating them to attend as in the manner used. Who would have been criticized had members of the student body missed Dr. Crane's addresses?

Helen Diederich, '27: Compulsory convocation attendance seems to be for the best interests of the college. It brings students and faculty together in a manner that would otherwise be impossible and promotes a real school spirit.

Burton Behling, '28: Convocation has been far more instructive and entertaining this year than in the past, as far as my experiences go, at least. However, to presume that all of the students would continue to make convocation attendance a regular habit were the requirement lifted, is doubtful. Unquestionably daily convocation has decided advantages. Were it not required, however, I'm sure we would all have an inclination to give convocation second consideration.

Award "L" Sweaters To Kitch, Johnson

Norma Kitch and Bernice Johnson, both '27, have been awarded "L" sweaters, the highest W.A.A. award for participation in women's sports. The attainment of five hundred points, forty of which must be earned by team membership, is the requirement for this honor. Both of these girls have been especially active in the major sports of the association, tennis, track, and basketball. Lois Manchester, '27, won a sweater earlier in the year.

Twelve girls were awarded their class numerals, which are granted for one hundred and fifty points, including fifteen team points. They were: Dorothy von Berg, '27; Ramona Fox, Catherine Fintel, Amy Howser, and Jean Jackson, '28; Mildred Christman, Helen Fredericksen, Edna Niess, and Anna Marie Perschbacher, '29; and Irene Fullerton, Katherine Howser, and Helen Ziegler, '30.
